In first hand, it can be said that every workplace I've worked at before has contributed to the development of my communication skills, starting with my first job in Gárdony, where I had to work with people older and more experienced than me at a young age, and even contribute ideas during certain events. My second job helped me develop my individual skills, as I was regularly required to establish connections with companies and check orders. I also participated in almost all major festivals and events as a work supervisor, ensuring the proper supply and functioning of electronic equipment on the stages, as well as the smooth running of the events. My most recent and current job is where I began during my internship. Here, I can apply the communication skills and organizational experience I have accumulated over the years. My daily routine and tasks are enhanced by the skills I have gained, and negotiations and the management of various projects have become an integral part of my work.

SPORT CARRIER

From 2017 to 2019, I was a player on the top American football team in Hungary, where, as the years progressed, I first served as team captain, and I could have been selected for the national team if I hadn't gotten injured. Since 2024, I have been studying mixed martial arts at the Professional Kempo Academy and strengthening the team as a competitor
